ARLENE IN NASHVILLE

The Ottawa Valley will always be my home, but Nashville holds a special place in my heart as my second home. I've been back and forth to Nashville, writing lots of new songs. Last month, I finally had the chance to bring my son Brayden with me. It was amazing to show him the city that I've been visiting for years. He had a great time meeting my musician friends and can't wait to go back!

In Nashville, the heart of country music is the song. Without a good song, there's no story for you to connect with while listening to the music. I enjoy performing and participating in songwriter rounds, but my true passion lies in writing songs that resonate with my audience and create a deep emotional connection with the listener.

I've been fortunate to collaborate with some of the best songwriters in the industry, and they've taught me so much about the art of songwriting. I'll be heading back to Nashville soon, and I'd love to have you join me on this musical journey.

ARLENE IN THE COMMUNITY

I feel incredibly lucky to spend my weekdays providing music therapy for the amazing people in my community. Each day, I travel to two or three different locations to offer music therapy to individuals living in group homes, long-term care facilities, retirement homes, and those in palliative care in hospice. I truly adore the work I do, and every day I am filled with happiness when I see the smiles and hear the laughter that my music brings to them.

I wish everyone could witness the incredible moments I experience daily. When I provide therapy in memory care for those with dementia, it's not uncommon for someone to suddenly remember how to dance, sing along to all my songs, or recall stories, even if they can't remember their own name or their family members' names. This is the magic of music therapy!

I look forward to sharing some of my music therapy stories with you in the coming months. Hopefully, they will bring the same joy to your heart as they do to mine.
